A little change goes a long way!

Alameda Transportation Management Association (Alameda TMA) is a non-profit working to change the way people move in Alameda. Alameda TMA's goal is to reduce single occupancy vehicle (SOV) trips, reduce total emissions and increase awareness of sustainable modes of transportation.

The Alameda TMA provides information and resources about ways to travel to, from, and around the island. For walking, biking, ebikes, ferry service, transit, and ride sharing, Alameda TMA is a great place to start your trip planning!

Visit www.alamedatma.org for more information.

Planning a trip to Alameda?

Visit Alameda Land on the island off the coast of Oakland. Though only 10.16 square miles, Alameda has plenty to do both day and night.

Sitting on 25 miles of shoreline, you can easily get your sea air fix on the pedestrian/bicycle path and beach that stretch along a beautiful two and a half miles on the San Francisco Bay. And it's family and dog-friendly.

Home to an enthusiastic and welcoming sailing and boating community, Alameda has a rich maritime history. And if you like museums, you will have plenty to visit here, including the unique Pacific Pinball Museum.

Water sports abound! Rowing, kayaking, SUP, kite surfing and more, with trails that let you explore Alameda's natural wonders, including shoreline birdwatching.

Enjoy the great Bay views of many of the urban wineries, craft beer breweries, taprooms and eateries as you create your own tour of this fun island.

And wherever you go - show your Trail Guide and let them know that SF on the Bay says hello!

Let's go!

Alameda City Hall

2263 Santa Clara Ave. Start your trip planning with the friendly folks at Alameda City Hall. Pick up a Visitor's Guide & learn about the building's history - a beautiful Romanesque Revival structure built by Percy & Hamilton Architects circa 1896. 510-747-7400. Also pick up Trail Guides at City Hall West, 950 W Wall Square.

SF on the Bay Looking to the Future

SF on the Bay has dedicated itself to the motto "The Bay brings us together," and together we can make our voices heard. Join us in our commitment to Save the Bay, Save the Ocean, and Save the Planet by supporting Climate Action.

Alameda Municipal

Power - 100% Clean Energy

Alameda Municipal Power (AMP) was founded in 1887 and is the oldest municipal electric utility in California and among the oldest in the nation, public or private. AMP has provided 100% clean energy to Alameda residents since 2020, including 80% from renewable energy sources!

As a community-owned utility, decisions about AMP's policies are made by Alameda residents who volunteer to serve on the city's Public Utilities Board, giving AMP customers a direct voice in utility decisions and policymaking. This connection to the community allows AMP to provide excellent customer service.

Alameda is among only a handful of cities in the country to reach their 100% clean energy goals! AMP is committed to providing safe and reliable power and will continue to invest in new and improved ways of reducing environmental impact.

"As an avid plein air painter for 23 years, I find water fascinating and fun to paint. I love the transparency, the reflective quality, and the movement of water. Alameda is a town rich with inspiration for the plein air painter and I was inspired by this lagoon-side home. It was great fun to paint with its distinctive architecture, bright garden with a stately King Palm, and its brilliant red umbrella reflecting in the waters of the Grand Street Lagoon." -Marie Massey, winner of the Frank Bette Center for the Arts 2021 PAPO Award

From Hwy 880 you can reach Alameda by car in four ways: 1) Through the Webster/Posey Tunnel 2) Over the Park Street Bridge 3) Over the Fruitvale Railroad Bridge or 4) Over the High Street Bridge. Not enough bridges for you? There's a bridge to take you from Alameda Island to Bay Farm Island! If you're sailing in, dock at one of the many marinas or yacht clubs. Just call ahead for guest dock information.

Island Getaway And once you're there, enjoy the friendly Alameda hustle and bustle which almost demands that you take time out to relax and enjoy this historically rich community. It's definitely not deserted, but you are on an island, so relax and enjoy! Park & Webster streets along with Alameda Landing and South Shore Center will keep you busy with lots of dining, shopping, events and fun. Waterfront dining with views of SF and the Bay is easy to find on this island.

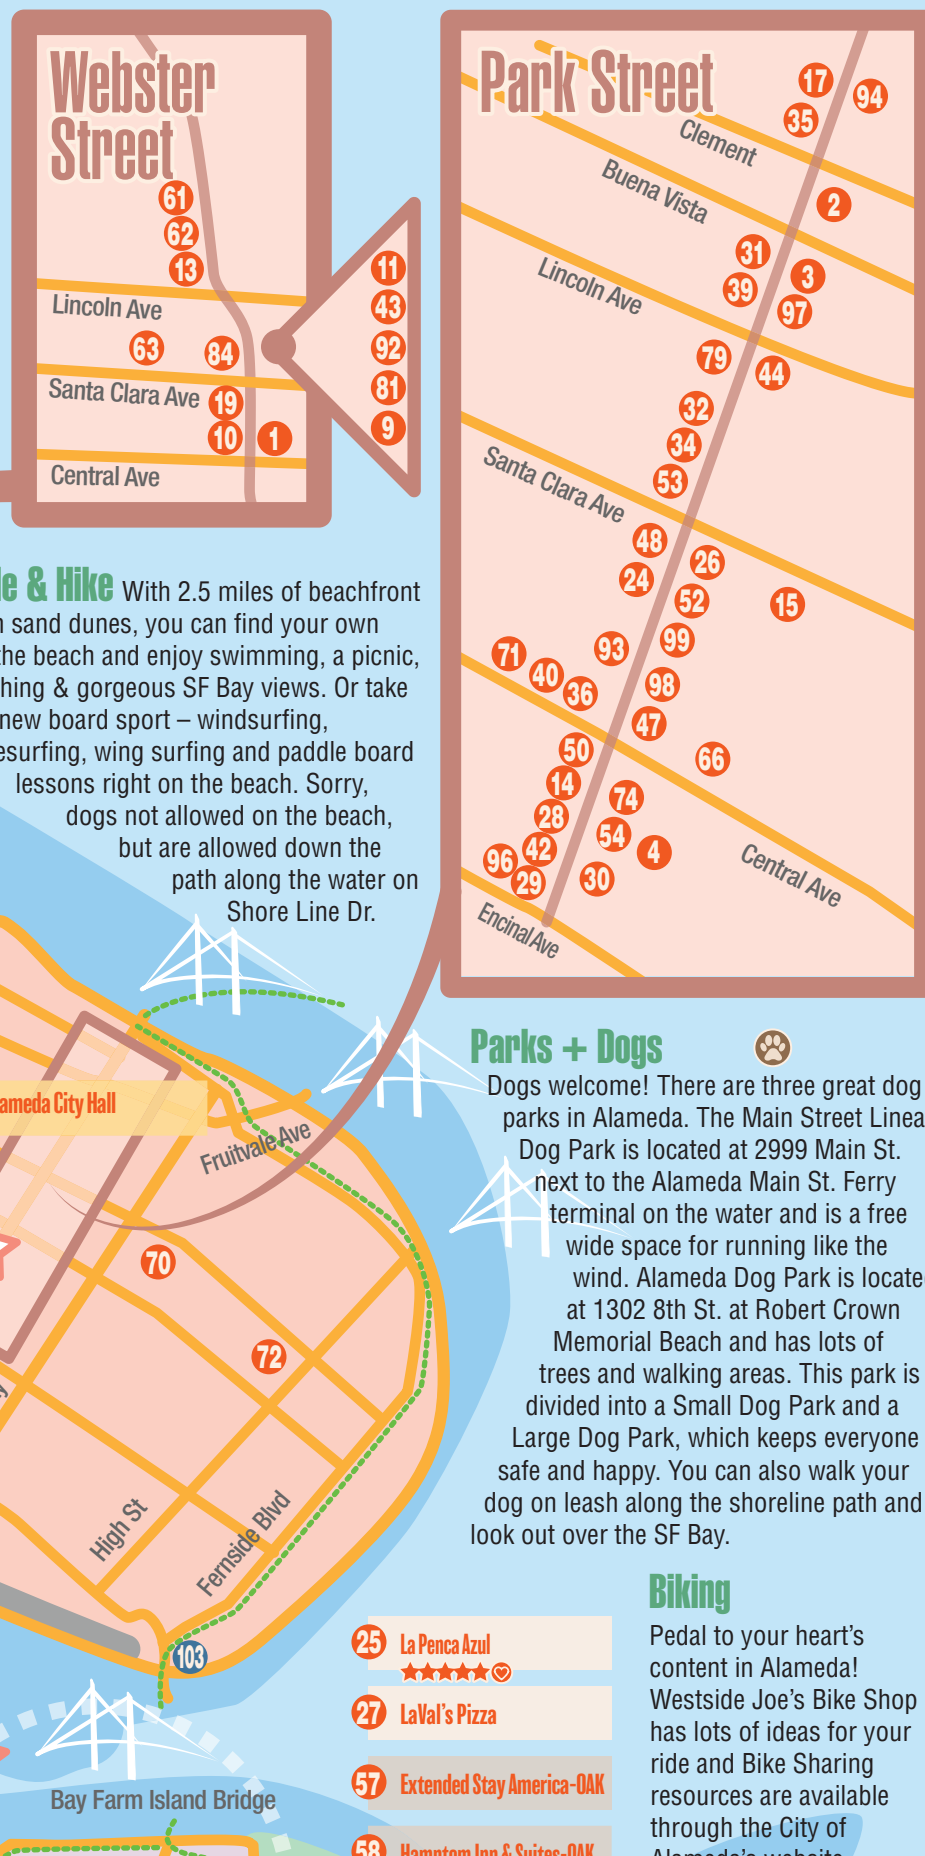

Sprits Alley Alameda Landing shopping center is the gateway to Alameda Point which has sprouted great breweries, distilleries, wineries and dining in an area called Spirits Alley. Unbelievable views of San Francisco Bay and the City's skyline from the water's edge are a huge draw on this evolving new use of an old Alameda Naval Air Station. You will want to linger in the evening to watch the fantastic sunsets on the Bay.

Float, Paddle & Hike With 2.5 miles of beachfront strewn with sand dunes, you can find your own spot on the beach and enjoy swimming, a picnic, sunbathing & gorgeous SF Bay views. Or take up a new board sport – windsurfing, kitesurfing, wing surfing and paddle board lessons right on the beach. Sorry, dogs not allowed on the beach, but are allowed down the path along the water on Shore Line Dr.

Parks + Dogs Dogs welcome! There are three great dog parks in Alameda. The Main Street Linear Dog Park is located at 2999 Main St. next to the Alameda Main St. Ferry terminal on the water and is a free wide space for running like the wind. Alameda Dog Park is located at 1302 8th St. at Robert Crown Memorial Beach and has lots of trees and walking areas. This park is divided into a Small Dog Park and a Large Dog Park, which keeps everyone safe and happy. You can also walk your dog on leash along the shoreline path and look out over the SF Bay.

Biking Pedal to your heart's content in Alameda! Westside Joe's Bike Shop has lots of ideas for your ride and Bike Sharing resources are available through the City of Alameda's website.

Walking the Island Alameda is soooo walkable (and bike-rideable!). To give you some ideas for a 1-ish mile walk, check out the Great Walks circles, or use nearby map markers to create your own Great Walk! It's easy to eat at a favorite restaurant, stroll to a park or entertainment, and complete your walk at a pub, winery or distillery. Of course, Park Street & Webster Street both offer

Alameda is 3000 walkable (and bike-rideable!). To give you some ideas for a 1-ish mile walk, check out the Great Walks circles, or use nearby map markers to create your own Great Walk! It's easy to eat at a favorite restaurant, stroll to a park or entertainment, and complete your walk at a pub, winery or distillery. Of course, Park Street & Webster Street both offer great walks and lots of dining & shopping, people-watching, & things to do. Even a movie theatre! Great Walks for the family might include the Pinball Museum, USS Hornet, & a beach picnic! Be creative & get out and stretch those legs, Alameda-style!

Antiques + Art Hidden treasures are waiting for you at the antique shops and at Alameda Point Antiques Faire and Michaan's Auctions. Spend the afternoon antiques and the evening dining and taking in the arts. From galleries that hold the works of the artists who flock to Alameda for its abundance of water scenes, to 2nd Fridays Art Walks, theatre, music, movies, comedy, you'll enjoy the energy of the dynamic art and entertainment community.

++ Encinal Beach and Trail are about a half mile west of Crab Cove. The beach is a conditionally designated official SF Bay Water Trail site. Cross the Bay Farm Island Bridge and enjoy the trails with your four-legged friend, or a round of golf with the two-legged sort!
